[music]

[Agricultural fields on a mountain, workers in the field, people visiting a market.]

Narrator: All over the world, much remains to be done to eradicate hunger, fight climate change and its consequences, promote good health and well-being for all, give women and youth their rightful place, and eliminate insecurity in all its forms.

[People writing notes in an outdoor gathering, women working in offices, people in classrooms.]

Narrator: We are all agents of change. Together, we can build a greener, more inclusive and prosperous world.

[Farmers picking fruits, workers discussing in the fields, people handling money.]

Narrator: It is through access to financial services adapted to their needs, sufficient financial knowledge, and the ability to control their own finances that men, women and youth develop their economic autonomy and can farm in a sustainable way, start a business and create jobs, take care of their loved ones, and cope with shocks.

[A woman rides a motorcycle on the streets of a city, vehicles on a street, a debit card payment terminal.]

Narrator: Economic empowerment is what we do. We are DID.

[Two men in an office shake hands while smiling.]

Narrator: We bring over 50 years of experience in 65 countries.

Narrator: And, above all, opportunities for tens of millions of people: Farmers,

[People working in fields and plantations.]

Narrator: entrepreneurs,

[A man tends to a cow, a woman types on a computer.]

Narrator: women,

Narrator: young people.

[A young man smiles at the camera, a group of people is gathered in front of a shelter.]
